What is Boy Scouting?

Boy Scouting is the program established by the Boy Scouts of America for boys who are at least 11 years old, or have completed the fifth grade, to 17 years old. In Boy Scouting, boys, families, and adult leaders work together to achieve three specific objectives, commonly referred to as the "Aims of Scouting." They are character development, citizenship training, and personal fitness. In order to do this, Scouting employs eight methods:

- Ideals. The ideals of Boy Scouting are spelled out in the Scout Oath, the Scout Law, the Scout motto, and the Scout slogan. The Boy Scout measures himself against these ideals and continually tries to improve. The goals are high, and as he reaches for them, he has some control over what and who he becomes.
- Patrols. The patrol method gives Boy Scouts an experience in group living and participating citizenship. It places responsibility on young shoulders and teaches boys how to accept it. The patrol method allows Scouts to interact in small groups where members can easily relate to each other. These small groups determine troop activities through elected representatives.
- Outdoor Programs. Boy Scouting is designed to take place outdoors. It is in the outdoor setting that Scouts share responsibilities and learn to live with one another. In the outdoors the skills and activities practiced at troop meetings come alive with purpose. Being close to nature helps Boy Scouts gain an appreciation for the beauty of the world around us. The outdoors is the laboratory in which Boy Scouts learn ecology and practice conservation of nature's resources.

- Advancement. Boy Scouting provides a series of surmountable obstacles and steps in overcoming them through the advancement method. The Boy Scout plans his advancement and progresses at his own pace as he meets each challenge. The Boy Scout is rewarded for each achievement, which helps him gain self-confidence. The steps in the advancement system help a Boy Scout grow in self-reliance and in the ability to help others.
- Associations With Adults. Boys learn a great deal by watching how adults conduct themselves. Scout leaders can be positive role models for the members of the troop. In many cases a Scoutmaster who is willing to listen to boys, encourage them, and take a sincere interest in them can make a profound difference in their lives.
- Personal Growth. As Boy Scouts plan their activities and progress toward their goals, they experience personal growth. The Good Turn concept is a major part of the personal growth method of Boy Scouting. Boys grow as they participate in community service projects and do Good Turns for others. Probably no device is as successful in developing a basis for personal growth as the daily Good Turn. The religious emblems program also is a large part of the personal growth method. Frequent personal conferences with his Scoutmaster help each Boy Scout to determine his growth toward Scouting's aims.
- Leadership Development. The Boy Scout program encourages boys to learn and practice leadership skills. Every Boy Scout has the opportunity to participate in both shared and total leadership situations. Understanding the concepts of leadership helps a boy accept the leadership role of others and guides him toward the citizenship aim of Scouting.
- Uniform. The uniform makes the Boy Scout troop visible as a force for good and creates a positive youth image in the community. Boy Scouting is an action program, and wearing the uniform is an action that shows each Boy Scout's commitment to the aims and purposes of Scouting. The uniform gives the Boy Scout identity in a world brotherhood of youth who believe in the same ideals. The uniform is practical attire for Boy Scout activities and provides a way for Boy Scouts to wear the badges that show what they have accomplished.

What are the ideals of Boy Scouting?

These ideals are expressed in the oath, law and motto which all Boy Scouts learn:

Scout Oath:

On my honor I will do my best

To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the Scout Law;
To help other people at all times;
To keep myself physically strong,
mentally awake, and morally straight.

Scout Law:

A Scout Is . . .

- | | |
|-------------|--|
| TRUSTWORTHY | A Scout tells the truth. He keeps his promises. Honesty is part of his code of conduct. People can depend on him. |
| LOYAL | A Scout is true to his family, Scout leaders, friends, school, and nation. |
| HELPFUL | A Scout is concerned about other people. He does things willingly for others without pay or reward. |
| FRIENDLY | A Scout is a friend to all. He is a brother to other Scouts. He seeks to understand others. He respects those with ideas and customs other than his own. |
| COURTEOUS | A Scout is polite to everyone regardless of age or position. He knows good manners make it easier for people to get along together. |
| KIND | A Scout understands there is strength in being gentle. He treats others as he wants to be treated. He does not hurt or kill harmless things | without reason.

OBEDIENT	A Scout follows the rules of his family, school, and troop. He obeys the laws of his community and country. If he thinks these rules and laws are unfair, he tries to have them changed in an orderly manner rather than disobey them.

REVERENT

A Scout is reverent toward God. He is faithful in his religious duties. He respects the beliefs of others.

Scout Motto:

Be Prepared.

How is Boy Scouting organized?

The Patrol . . .

Boy Scouts are assigned to patrols, which are groups of five to eight boys. Patrols elect their own leader, the Patrol Leader and Assistant Patrol Leader, and typically camp together on outings and do all the planning and preparation for those outings together as well.

The Troop . . .

All patrols are part of the "Troop". Troops are sponsored by a "chartering organization," usually a church, and generally meet in a fellowship hall or other facility which is part of that church. The adult leader of the troop is called the "Scoutmaster." Troop meetings are often led by older Scouts, with supervision from adult leaders. The meetings include instruction on Scout skills, planning of upcoming events, and presentation of awards earned by individual Scouts. There's also plenty of time for activities, games and fun.

The District and the Council . . .

Boy Scout Troops in Durham County are part of Mawat District. Mawat District and other districts in central North Carolina are part of Occoneechee Council. Both the District and the Council occasionally sponsor special, larger events for Boy Scouts to attend.

What activities do Boy Scouts do?

The Boy Scouting program includes activities that involve outdoor adventure, learning new skills through outdoor activities and the merit badge program, leadership opportunities, and service to others.

- Outdoor Adventure: Troops often go on overnight or weekend camping trips where Scouts engage in a variety of activities: camping, cooking, building fires, enjoying water activities like swimming and canoeing, backpacking, rock climbing, and more. Many Scouts attend a week of summer camp each year, where they camp for an entire week, work on merit badges, and just have fun. Scouts also attend larger events called Camporees and Jamborees which bring together large numbers of Boy Scouts from different parts of the state, country and world.
- Learning New Skills: Scouts learn the skills needed to function in the outdoors - pitching a tent, cooking a meal, identifying plants and animals, including poisonous ones, administering first aid, swimming safely and confidently, and more. Through the merit badge program, Scouts can gain exposure to many different and useful areas, from learning about how to be citizens of their community to leatherwork to shotgun shooting to auto repair.
- Leadership: Scouting is a boy-led program. Troops provide a number of leadership positions. Boys can be elected by their fellow Scouts to be Assistant Patrol Leader, Patrol Leader, Senior Patrol Leader, and other positions as well. Leadership training is provided by adult leaders.
- Service: Service is an integral part of the program. Scouts engage in conservation projects, clear and improve trails, help out at their schools or religious institutions, and can even serve Cub Scouts as Den Chiefs. Many troops participate in the annual Scouting for Food program, which gathers food for those in need in our area.

Frequently Asked Questions

How can adults help?

We're glad you asked! There are a number of ways adults can help Scouting be successful:

- First and foremost, support your son in his Scouting activities. Make sure he has his uniform and his book. Keep up with the calendar of Scout activities, and make sure that he attends his troop meetings and outings. Work with him on advancement activities throughout the Scouting year, so that he can earn his badges of rank and merit badges.
- Volunteer some of your time and talents. As in any volunteer-run organization, there are a number of positions with varying time commitments and levels of responsibility. Let the current Troop volunteers know that you're willing to help, and they'll help you find a job that you're comfortable with. If you're new to Scouting, don't let that stand in your way; no experience is necessary! You can help with driving to campouts, and stay and help on those campouts. You can teach merit badge classes. You can serve on the Troop Committee and help plan the overall Troop program and administer the unit.
